About Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs)

What is an Exchange Traded Fund

- An ETF is a fund that tracks an underlying index. Its units are available on the stock exchange, where its value is updated on real time, through out the equity market's trading hours. The ETF's real-time price is called an Indicative Net Asset Value (iNAV).
- An ETF can have multiple stocks from one or many sectors, providing diversification in an investor's equity investments. Investors can have a portfolio of different stocks and not have to manage all the stocks themselves.
- ETF, like all financial products, holds a certain degree of risk. The level of risk is subject to the underlying index the ETF is tracking.

ETF versus open-end funds

➤ Similarities:

- Similar to stocks and equity mutual funds, ETFs also offer capital upside potential to investors. ETFs also benefit from companies that pay dividends, which may be distributed among the ETF unit holders, resulting in dividend yield.

➤ Differences:

- A regular mutual fund publishes its unit price after market has closed, while ETF's price is updated in real-time in trading hours, just like an ordinary stock.
- Certain trading strategies such as limit orders or stop losses can be applied with an ETF, which cannot be done with a regular mutual fund.
- When you buy / sell units of a regular mutual fund you transact directly to and from the investment company that issues them. An ETF, however, trades like a stock and is bought and sold from the market.

(JSGBETF)

What is JS Global Banking Sector ETF (JSGBETF)

JS Global Capital has played a vital role in developing Pakistan's first algorithmic solution as market maker of all existing ETFs in PSX.

This has led to JSGCL becoming the first brokerage to launch an ETF on PSX.

- JS Global Banking Sector Exchange Traded Fund (JSGBETF) is a sector-specific ETF that will track a total-return based index – JS Global Banking Sector Index (JSGBKTI).
- A sector ETF, that tracks a basket of stocks within a sector.
- JSGBKTI will be replicating PSX's BKTi, keeping weights of all stocks equal on each rebalancing.
- JSGBETF currently consists of 8 banking stocks (table on next slide), that represents ~70% of the listed banking sector (~80% on free float market cap).
